Want to get your preschoolers on the road to becoming a super leader? Take a look at . Super Why! for children between the ages of 3 and 6 employs a problem-solving strategy. Found from Hans Christian Andersen's story Princesses and Peas, PBS KIDS Princess has a very special superhero power. As she transforms into Princess Presto, she has a spell power that allows super leaders (and viewers) to spell out the words needed to finish the story. Princess Presto always explains the sounds and combinations of characters so that they appear with her magic wand, and she is always enthusiastic about it. Princess Presto is a big fan of tea ceremonies and dress-ups, wearing cute lavender dresses. Princess Pea/Princess Presto is the voice of Taja Isen. PBS KIDS Pig likes to imagine that a pig on a tricycle in Three Little Pigs is a construction worker like his father, always wearing a hard hat and overalls. When he becomes a super leader, he transforms into an alpha pig, filled with alphabet power and a special alphabet toolbox filled with everything the team needs to build words including alphabet maps, lucky letter lasso, brilliant binoculars and mega magnifying glass. Alpha Pig is the voice of Zachary Bloch. PBS KIDS Red Riding Hood Rolls In! When Red Riding Hood Arrives, this friendly, unassuming character (from a classic story) who knows it turns into a wonder red and has word power. With fun songs and her wonder word basket, Wonder Red can change the word of the story to solve the problem. When Wonder Red appears, get ready to rhyme, as she has a lot of focus on the family of words. Whether she's wearing a superhero jumpsuit or a daily red dress, she's rarely seen without roller skates. Red Riding Hood/Wonder Red is voiced by Sierra Florind. PBS KIDS Whyatt is their leader when they head to a book club and five friends turn into super leaders. Jack's brother from Jack and beanstalk fame, his superhero form is Super Why. He lives with his mom and dad (who writes and explains stories as a team) and his baby sister Joy. As for Jack, he appears in occasional episodes, but he is away in college. Super why wear green masks, sneakers and blue capes. He carries his Why Writer and emphasizes the text on the screen as he reads it. Super why you have the reading power and can fly to the book to solve the problem. Why the beans tree is voiced by Nicholas Castel Vanderburgh. Woofster, the newest and furry member of the PBS KIDS team, got on board in SeptemberWhy when visiting a pet adoption fair at Storybook Village. An adorable (and smart) puppy has joined a reading superhero after the super leader travelled through woofster stories and heard his stories. Worcester's special ability is dictionary power. It allows him to look up the word super why! Woofster is the voice of Joan VanNicola. Thanks for your feedback! Most of the outsider characters by S.E. Hinton belong to two rival factions: Grisser and Soks. Young people mostly follow social groups and positions, but casual encounters lead them to realize that they are very similar in many ways. Ironically, these encounters also lead to violent events, a turning point in the novel. Ponyboy Curtis (real name) is the novel's 14-year-old narrator and protagonist and the youngest member of The Greeter. What separates him from the rest of the gang is his literary interests and academic achievements: he identifies as Charles Dickens's big-expected protagonist Pip, and during his escape with Johnny, he introduces him to a Southern epic that has gone away with the wind. His parents died in a car accident before the novel's events, so Ponyboy lives with his brothers Dally and Soda Pop. He has a loving bond with soda pop, but his relationship with his egas long-ing brother Dally is more strained as ponyboys have repeatedly accused him of lacking common sense. Ponyboy has a strong distaste for a rival gang of Griesers called Sox, but through the novel's progress, he recognizes that both sides have problems and actually share some similarities. Johnny is a 16-year-old gleaser who is passive, quiet and vulnerable compared to other members of the gang. He is from an abusive alcoholic household, almost ignored by his parents and drawn towards Greaser because they are the only family-like structure that accepts him. Grisser, by contrast, finds that protecting him gives purpose to their violence. Johnny is the main catalyst for the novel's major events. He's the one who tells fellow Greeter Dally to stop harassing two Soc girls in the film, urging the girls to be fraternity. This, in turn, prompts the sock boys to attack both Johnny and Ponyboy. In this attack, Johnny murders one of Sok in self-defense. After escaping with Ponyboy and decided to turn himself in, he heroically rescues the children trapped inside before dying in a church fire. He has a strong desire for peace, and his fragile yet heroic attitude is eager for Greaser to protect him. In both his family life and his heroic death, the tragic nature of the character make him a martyr-like figure. Ponyboy decided to write a story about becoming an outsider so that Johnny's act would not be forgotten. Sock girl, Cherry is a fellow Sock girlfriendSheldon. Her real name is Sherri and she has her nickname on her red hair. A popular cheerleader, she meets Ponyboy and Johnny in the film and gets along with both of them because they treat her politely.

In contrast, far from being impressed (but intrigued) by Dally's lack of manners, this shows that she can identify individual personalities on belonging to a particular social group. Despite her mixed feelings, she admires Dally's personality, saying to Ponyboy that she can fall in love with someone like him. Ponyboy and Cherry turn out to have a lot in common, especially with their mutual passion for literature, and Ponyboy feels comfortable talking to her. But she does not completely ignore the social conventions of the town. She bluntly tells Ponyboy that she admits to respecting social divisions and probably won't greet him at school. Darrell Dally Curtis is ponyboy's oldest brother. He's a 20-year-old Greaser, who others call Superman, but raises ponyboys because his parents died in a car crash. If the circumstances of his life had been different, both athletic and intelligent, he would have gone to college. Instead, he left school to do two jobs and raise a brother. He is good at making chocolate cake and he and his brother eat it every day for breakfast. The unofficial leader of Greaser, he is an authority on ponyboys. Soda Pop (real name) is Ponyboy's happy-go-lucky and handsome brother. He is curtis's middle boy, working at a gas station. Ponyboy envious of the beauty and charm of soda pop. Keith 2-bit Matthews is the joker in PonyBoy's group - has pen chants for the second. He instigates the antagonism between Soks and Greaser by flirting with Sock's girlfriend, Marcia. He admires the sleek black handle switchblade. Steve has been a close friend of soda pop since elementary school. They work together at a gas station. Steve knows everything about cars and specializes in stealing hub caps. He is very proud of his hair, which he wears in intricate arrangements of swirls. In fact, he once held off four opponents in a fight with a broken soda bottle. He's very annoyed with ponyboys he sees as the annoying kid brother of soda pop and he's willing to stay in his lane. Dallas Dally Winston is the toughest greeter in PonyBoy's group. He had a past with gangs in New York and spent some time in prison - he's proud. He is said to have elfin's face, frozen blue eyes and white blond hair. He also has a softer side that appears in his protection against Johnny, even though he shows more dangerous violent tendencies than other grissers. Bob is Cherry's boyfriend, who beats Johnny before the novel's events, and johnny eventually kills him when Bob tries to drown the ponyboy. He wears a set of three rings during the brawl and, overall, is pictured asa person who has never been disciplined by his parents. Marcia is Cherry's friend and Randy's girlfriend. The two share the same sense of humor and a taste for pointless muses, so she gets along with the two bits in the drive-in. Randy Aderson is Marcia's boyfriend and Bob's best friend. He is sock who ultimately recognizes the pointlessness of the fight, and with Cherry, he gives them redeeming qualities and shows the softer side of Soks. In fact, thanks to Randy, Ponyboy recognizes that Seok is just as vulnerable to pain to anyone else. Jerry Wood is a teacher who accompanies Ponyboy to the hospital after saving his children from a fire. Although an adult and a member of mainstream society, Jerry doesn't automatically brand juvenile deeds, he judges greeders on their merits. Mr Syme is an English teacher at Ponyboy and has voiced concerns about ponyboy's failing grades, once a stellar student. As a final effort, he offers to improve Ponyboy's grades once he turns into a well-written autobiographical theme. This encourages ponyboys to write about greasers and soks. The first words in his essay are the first words of the novel. Novel.
